"For even the Son of Man did not come to be served, but to serve, and to give His life a ransom for many."
Mark 10:45

"A UNIT OF ISOLATED BELIEVERS" or "FAMILY"?

Billie Jean James, a Las Vegas woman, and her husband, Bill, carried hoarding and pack-ratting to unheard-of lengths. The 67-year-old woman had been missing for four months and dogs with experience at ground zero on 9-11 and experience searching for victims during Hurricane Katrina could not find her in her home. But, that's exactly where her husband found her–buried beneath a pile of junk! Though the husband was never a suspect in her death, you have to wonder how close they were for her to be lying in their small, one-bedroom home for so long without him knowing where she was. Our world has conditioned us to be individual units living in isolation from one another. Too often, we live that way in our neighborhoods. On the job, we pretty much stay to ourselves and lack connections with any real depth. We may have a bunch of virtual friends through social networks or online connections, but those alone and in isolation lack the depth and breadth of actual, face-to-face friendships. We don't want to be units of isolated believers.

The church is described as family in 1 Timothy 3:15, shown in its various forms in 1Timothy 5:1-2. We are to be a part of each other's lives (Titus 2:1). We are to share life together, a trait which characterized the church from the very beginning (Acts 2:42-47). The church is to be a loving group, known to be disciples of Jesus by a visible, active love for one another (John 13:34-35). Something is not right, is even dysfunctional, when we do not know each other and are virtually strangers who meet together looking at the back of heads we stare at during worship before we quickly scurry out the door. Such disconnection where we maintain merely a drive-by philosophy of church, devoid of relationships, sets us up for tragedies that go beyond that of Mrs. James. If we slip away from faithfulness and are buried beneath the rubble of sin or broken faith, we make it harder for brothers and sisters to find us. To die in that state is eternally devastating. Let's be more than a unit of isolated believers. Let's be Family!
